Investment Perspective

FROM BRETHREN FOUNDATION FUNDS

MARCH 2017

MARKETS AND THE ECONOMY

The S&P 500 Index logged record highs in February, rising 4 percent. Year-to-date performance of 5.9 percent is a stark reversal of last year's performance of negative 5.1 percent during the same period. The Federal Reserve signaled a potential rate increase in March as the economy continues to strengthen. Despite strong job growth, the unemployment rate ticked up to 4.8 percent in January from a post-financial-crisis low of 4.6 percent in December, as more Americans looked for work. Personal income increased 0.4 percent in January, up 4 percent in the past year. Personal consumption rose 0.2 percent in January, up 4.7 percent in the past year. The bond market, as measured by the Bloomberg Barclays Government/Credit Index, rose 0.8 percent in February.

Inflation in the European Union was 2 percent higher in February than a year earlier, driven by the rise in energy prices. The Bank of England held its benchmark interest rate steady at 0.25 percent and agreed to halt purchases of government bonds as part of its monetary stimulus. Japan's fourth quarter GDP grew at an annualized rate of 1 percent, as weak consumer spending offset a pickup in exports and business investment. China's manufacturing sector expanded in February over the prior month. During the fourth quarter, India's economy grew at an annualized rate of 7 percent from a year ago; consumption was constrained by the removal of cash from circulation in an effort to crack down on corruption. International equities, as measured by the MSCI EAFE Index, rose 1.4 percent in February.
